

Dear Neighbor,

Thank you for taking a moment to learn more about East Cobb Theatrical, the 501(c)(3) nonprofit arm of Brittany Leazer Productions. I am deeply grateful for your time and consideration.

As a child, I was the student who often felt different. I struggled with ADHD and learning challenges, and there were many moments when I felt misunderstood or like I didn't quite fit in. Everything changed the day I stepped onto a stage. Through the performing arts, I discovered confidence, belonging, purpose, and a place where I was valued exactly as I was.

That experience shaped the course of my life and ultimately led me to found Brittany Leazer Productions and East Cobb Theatrical. Today, our mission is about far more than producing great performances. We are committed to creating a place where young people can grow in confidence, character, leadership, creativity, and community. Every week, we have the privilege of serving hundreds of students and helping them discover gifts they may not have known they possessed.

As a nonprofit organization, we rely on the generosity of individuals and businesses who believe in investing in the next generation. Your support helps provide scholarships, fund productions and educational programming, maintain our facilities, and ensure that every student has the opportunity to participate regardless of financial circumstances.

Thank you for considering a partnership with East Cobb Theatrical. Together, we are not simply teaching students to sing, dance, and act—we are helping them find their voice, their confidence, and a place to belong.

With gratitude,

Brittany Leazer
